Lays Before Him Attitude of Secretary Hull Toward Oil Industry Expropriation

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT

Hopes Buoyed by Success of American Diplomatic Pressure in Borrego Case

MEXICO CITY, Mar. 23.—Petroleum
company officials today awaited possible concrete results from a forty-minute conference in which United States Ambassador Josephus Daniels
laid before President Lazaro Cardenas
the attitude of Secretary of State Hull toward the expropriation of this country's foreign-owned $500,000,000
oil industry.

Hope that some settlement eventually may be reached were buoyed by the success of American diplomatic pressure in winning the freedom of Edward Borrego, American Oil Company
executive who had been held as a
"hostage" by Mexican workers at Tampico.

Borrego was freed after Daniels made representations on his behalf at the Foreign Office here.

Barn Is Destroyed By Fire; Yardley Men Busy

YARDLEY, Mar. 23.—The Yardley
firemen were exhausted last evening,
due to a series of fires within six hours. The series started at 10:45 a. m., when they were called to the farm of S. Russell Willard, upper River road, where a grass fire had gone beyond control. Then a call came from River Road, New Jersey, where two houses were in danger from a grass fire. This was held under control without any property damage. At 11:30
they were summoned to the Lipman tract, a mile north of Yardley, when the homes of Joseph Hand, Mrs. Sarah Shapiro, George Wells and others were endangered by a raging fire. The firemen permitted the grass to burn, under their supervision, without any property damage.

During the afternoon a call was received from the center of the town, where a bunch of papers had been burned and had ignited dry grass and spread to a barn owned by Stephen Twining. The flames were subdued with small damage to the building.
Another call was received to go to the Lipman tract, where the farm barn, on the property of Isaac Lipman caught fire from a trash fire, and the home
of Vincent Shandys, across the road, was also aflame. The firemen played water on the Shandys home, saving it,
with only slight damage, but the barn
was beyond control before the extent of the fire was discovered by a passing motorist. For more than three hours they worked at the scene. While two engines were fighting this blaze, an alarm came in from the Eagle Neck-band Corporation, where some of the nearby property holders started a large grass fire by burning trash.

At the Lipman fire, the electric and telephone services were cut off.

Supreme Court Affirms Opinion of Judge Boyer

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 23.—The Supreme Court on Monday handed down
an opinion in the case of Mandes Golder vs. Harry J. Bogash, defendant, and Philadelphia Pure Rye Whiskey Distilling Co., garnishee, and B. I. De-Young, intervening claimant, in which it affirmed the decision of the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks County in an opinion by Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

Judge Boyer set aside the verdict of the jury and entered judgment
n. o. v. in favor of the garnishee and against the plaintiff in a judgment executed. This action was affirmed.

This was the third appeal taken to the Supreme Court over a period of years in various phases of the controversies between these parties, in all of which the Supreme Court affirmed Judge Boyer's decisions.

Langhorne Woman Has Choir Members As Guests

LANGHORNE, Mar. 23.—Mrs. Henry Hopkins entertained the choir of Langhorne M. E. Church, Friday evening, at her home on Hulmeville avenue.

A delightful evening was spent playing games. In honor of Mrs. Hopkins' recent birthday anniversary her guests
tendered her a handkerchief surprise.
Refreshments were served.

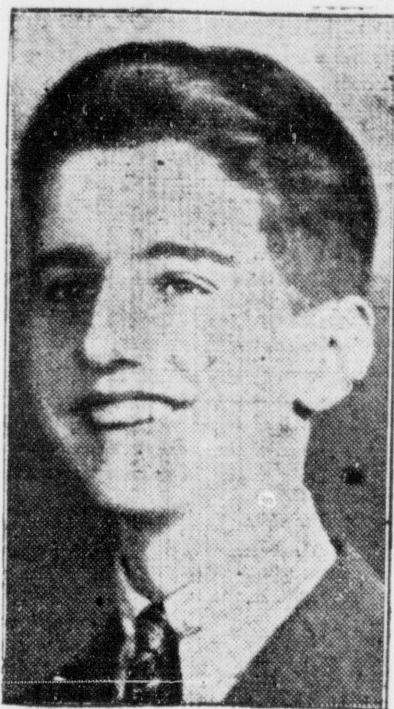

Those present: Mr. and Mrs. Jesse
W. Carter, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson,
John W. Baxter, Miss Frances Helyer, Miss Ann E. Vaughan, Mrs. Robert W. Vaughan, Mrs. Blanche Hetherington, Mrs. Verna Mather MacKenzie, Mrs. Gilbert N. Bonnell, Percy L. Brick,
Dorothy and Elaine Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hopkins.

WINNER

Moyer Hunsberger, junior at Quakertown High School, who was individual winner at the 12th annual spelling bee held on Saturday at the Peirce School, Philadelphia.
Young Hunsberger also led the Quakertown spelling team which won first place among the 28 teams in competition. He won on the word "querulous."

QUAKERTOWN STUDENT WINS SPELLING BEE

Moyer Hunsberger Carries Off
The Individual Honors
In the Contest

DOYLESTOWN BOY 3RD

Bucks County scholarship was much applauded, Saturday, at the 12th annual spelling contest held under the auspices of the Peirce School of Philadelphia, when young John Fullam, a student at the Doylestown high school,
was awarded third place among the individual winners, in an exceedingly difficult competition. The individual winner was Moyer Hunsberger, of Quakertown High, and the runner-up was James Peck, of Toms River High.
Quakertown also had the winning team; the secondary place among the teams being taken by Barnegat High School.

There were 28 contesting teams this year, each one being composed of five students, the school's best individual speller and four others, together with two alternates. The schools represented were all of Pennsylvania and New Jersey towns, the only Philadelphia
entrant being the Northeast Catholic High. The contestants assembled at Peirce School quite early in the morning for the written tests which occupied the hours until noon, when the visitors were guests of the Peirce School at luncheon. Those who made perfect scores of 100 in these written qualifying tests were Moyer Hunsberger, of Quakertown high school; James Peck,
Toms River high school; Kathryn Lathbury, Tuckerton, N. J., high school; Harold Werner, Robesonia
high school; Mary Fashenier, Hatfield
joint consolidated high school; Sara Johnson, Tuckerton, N. J., high school, who was the individual winner last year; and Oliver Tilton, Toms River
high school. Words most frequently misspelled in the qualifying tests were tappet, catenary, phosphorus, siliceous,
psychoneurosis, jettison, spaghetti, enzyme, atropine, podiatrist, iridescence,
hematite, ukulele, messaline, ferrous,
diuresis, vernier and posthumous.

Prior to the crucial afternoon tests,
there were addresses by various members of the Peirce faculty, and music by the school's choral society. The pronouncers and judges were W. E.
Bengler, chairman; H. O. Wells, L. D.
Clements, and H. B. Henry, all members of the Peirce faculty.

Young Fullam and the two other individual winners accepted their laurels
with characteristic modesty.

Yardley Firemen Keep Busy With Grass Fires

YARDLEY, Mar. 23.—With the first day of spring, the Yardley firemen were kept busy responding to fire
alarms, when three fires were reported within an hour and a half. The first alarm was near noon, when two small children returning from school started a fire under a fence on Canal street
between the garages on the property of Mrs. Lura R. Ross and Dr. H.
Linn Bassett. Headed home for his lunch hour, fireman Leroy Hackett saw the fence ablaze, and rushed to the fire house, and by quick action
avoided a serious blaze.

At 12:45 an alarm was turned in
from the township, when a grass fire was reported at the farm of E. Baldwin Edwards, on the upper river road.
The fire was started by home W. P. A.
and highway workers who are clearing the road, preparing to widen it,
and the fire became more than they could handle. After an hour or more work it was extinguished. As the firemen were returning from this call, an alarm was sent from Silver Lake Terrace, near the home of Harry Manser,
where another grass fire of unknown origin was making headway. This was quickly extinguished.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY

One of the largest sales of farm machinery, tools and household goods
ever held in the community near Dublin took place on the property formerly owned by John L. High, about a mile east of this borough Saturday afternoon. The offering of various articles was so large that Henry S. Klebel who had charge of the sale, found it necessary to engage two auctioneers, Isaac D. Derstine, of near Blooming Glen, and I. Erwin Yothers, of near Plumsteadville, who were kept busy receiving the bids from early in the afternoon until evening.

It is estimated that at least 1,000
persons from scores of communities
attended the auction and every available foot of parking space was occupied.

Two purebred Guernsey cows, Virginia Freeman 431267 and Vulcan's Lizzie Freeman 429069 were sold recently by J. S. Parry, of Rushland, to
S. Wilfred Smith, of New Hope.

A purebred Guernsey, Margarey Freeman 431266, was sold recently by J. S. Parry, of Rushland, to Samuel
J. Penrose, of Doylestown.

A purebred Guernsey cow, Cracker-jack's Burdie 314499, has been sold by William R. Burd, of Doylestown, to Raymond F. Buck, Jr., of Doyle-
town.

A purebred Guernsey cow, Thistle-wood Kissy 528697, was sold recently by Est. Craig Biddle, of Andalusia, to Budd G. Nice, of Hatboro.

A purebred Guernsey cow, Merry
Queen of Pinebrook 493401, was sold recently by E. F. Stewart, of Colmar, to Theodore H. Kleinhoff, of Doyle-
town.

Fourteen children—the number of boys and girls was equally divided—attended the opening of the Eugene S. Shuman Memorial Children's Reading Room in the Melinda Cox Free Library, Doylestown, Saturday afternoon.

In charge of the reading room were Mrs. Victor E. Ruehl, Jr., and Mrs.
George B. Bishop, both of whom are members of the Doylestown Junior Women's Club.

The room, which occupies the balcony in the rear of the library building, has been handsomely outfitted by Mrs. Eugene S. Shuman, 272 West
Court street, in memory of her husband.

With about a dozen men looking on,
the well drillers in charge of sinking
a well at the Quakertown disposal plant made an experiment a few days ago in an effort to find more water.
The well has attained a depth of 300
feet and still the water supply is too
low. Numerous tests had been made

PROMINENT SPORTSMEN SPEAKERS AT BANQUET

Seth E. Gordon Among Those Present at County Sports
Function

PICTURES ARE SHOWN

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 23.—The second annual banquet of the Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs of Bucks County, comprising 17 organizations in the county, was held in States' dining hall, here, last evening. Approximately 200
were in attendance, and were served with chicken.

Seth E. Gordon, executive secretary of Pennsylvania Game Commission, was among the speakers of the evening.

The meeting was opened by the president, Charles A. Rowe, of this borough, who after a few remarks
turned the program over to Charles W. Wessell, chief of the Bureau of Game Propagation for the Pennsylvania Game Commission. After Mr.
Wessell's talk, he introduced E. W.
Nicholson, Philadelphia, member of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, who spoke on affairs of interest to the fishermen. Mr. Nicholson dwelt for a time on the question of pollution,
stating there are ample laws to prevent such if properly enforced. "The people should advocate enforcement of such laws, and conditions would be cleaned up much faster."

Mr. Gordon's remarks were chiefly about the material taken from the Delaware River being used to fill in the swamp-lands. He stated that it would be more advisable to take the material by barge to deep water for dumping. "The draining of the swamp lands is killing the wild life," he added.

Among those introduced to the gathering were: Joel Young, fish warden
of Southeastern District of Pennsylvania; Harry Cole, a Montgomery County warden; Warren Fretz, farm-
game refuge supervisor of the Penna.
Southeastern District.

Clarence W. Winter, Bristol, received a splendid ovation for showing the following pictures which were very much enjoyed: "Man Eating Sharks," "Freaks of the Deep," "Sea-
Going Mammals," "Fangs of Death Valley," and a picture of exceptional interest to hunters, entitled "The Last Wilderness."

since the project was authorized by Borough Council, and the last test had been made at 275 feet about three weeks ago.

At that time it was possible to pump
only 25 gallons of water per minute,
while the capacity being sought is 300
gallons per minute.

Very much clay is being found in that particular ground and a removal
of that was attempted a few days ago.
The method used was that of dry ice.
A total of 500 pounds of dry ice was used on four charges made. The first charge of 150 pounds of dry ice caused the water to shoot skyward to a height of 30 feet, while the second charge shot the water upwards 45
feet.

With the insertion of the third
charge the water spouted to a height of only 25 feet, and on the final charge
very little action was seen.

AGED MORRISVILLE MAN TELLS OF TOWN CHANGES

H. T. Harrop is Oldest Fireman of Borough; Muses of Bygone Days

HE AND WIFE ARE 85

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 23.—One of this borough's oldest residents, H. T.
Harrop, who is a native of the town,
as well as its oldest fireman, says many changes have taken place here.

Musing over bygone days, Mr. Har-rop today recalled his boyhood days
when there were only five houses west of the canal and they all were farmhouses. And the only dwelling west of what is now Pennsylvania avenue was the homestead of former Mayor Frank
S. Hogeland, near Bridge street.

Richard street, he'll have you know,
was nothing but a backwash patch
back in those days, extending to what was then known as Bonaparte Park.
There were no houses south of Green
street and only two east of Washington street.

Being a fireman, naturally Mr. Har-rop mentioned firefighting of older days. The borough had a fire company
as far back as 269 years, he maintained.
He said it was called the William Penn Company.

The firehouse was on the east side of Washington street, near the old railroad line. One day, he recalled, the fire truck disappeared. It never was found again and the building has since been used as a toolhouse in Morrisville Cemetery.

Sharing his good health is Mrs. Har-rop. Both are 85 years old. They have four children living. For more than a quarter-century, Mr. Harrop was employed by the Valencien Rubber Company. He has maintained membership in the Union Fire Company from the time it was reorganized in 1893.

Speaking of industry, Mr. Harrop
says there was once a button shop
along the canal, operated by the and Charles Reed. This was later turned into a pipe shop where wooden pipes were made. A blacksmith shop was located on Bridge street, west of Pennsylvania avenue, operated by "Doc" White. There was a saw mill where the plant of the Vulcanized Rubber Plant is now located and another on the island. The brick building along the old railroad tracks, which is now owned by Dr. William H. Kunsman, was an oil-cloth factory, he declared.

The Luck of The Puddler

BY HIS enemies it is contended that the Puddler already has gone
farther and stayed longer on less than any member of the present Senate. There is room for argument about that, but certainly it is true that no Republican in recent years has had his luck. Named by President Harding as Secretary of Labor in 1921, he clung to that

Bandits Get $2,000 Near Langhorne

Langhorne, Mar. 23.—Five masked
and armed men today held up a restaurant and garage on the Lincoln Highway, four miles west of Langhorne, and escaped with $2,000. The proprietor planned to exchange cash
for checks of WPA workers in the neighborhood.

The quintet invaded the establishment after Frank Ridge, restaurant operator, returned with cash from the bank. Ridge and his wife were attending to the noon-hour rush of trade
when the thugs demanded the money.

Four of the gunmen cautioned
everyone against raising an outcry,
while a fifth waited at the wheel of a
get-away car parked outside.

The four pointed pistols at the half dozen employees and patrons, seized
the money and sped in an automobile
toward Philadelphia.

A negro chef, who disobeyed the bandits' orders to keep quiet, escaped
injury when a pistol pointed at him
by one of the intruders failed to discharge. He was cuffed into submission.

The robbery accomplished swiftly,
and without interference, the robbers
leaped into the car and roared down
the highway.

Ridge's restaurant adjoins the garage operated by a man named Cadwallader. The garage owner and two mechanics also were cowed by the bandits' pistols, while the hold-up was in progress.

All of the men wore white handkerchiefs. State motor police at Oxford Valley were notified.

A wide-spread search was begun at once, but the bandits' car apparently eluded pursuers.

Ridge regularly cashed checks as a convenience to WPA workers employed at the Byberry Hospital project
just over the Philadelphia city line.

Rescuers Work To Get Bodies

Benton Harbor, Mich., Mar. 23.—Res-

as their cabin monoplane crashed and burst into flames. The plane crashed shortly after it took off for the return trip to its South Bend, Ind., base.

Life-Long Resident Of Bristol Dies On Tuesday

Mrs. Sarah Ann Rodgers, wife of the late John W. Rodgers, died at her residence, 701 Spruce street, last evening.

Three daughters and four sons, all of whom reside in this borough, survive Mrs. Rodgers. These are: the Misses Helen and Isabella Rodgers, Mrs. Roland Vandegrift; Messrs. Thomas, John, Joseph and James Rodgers.

Six sisters, three brothers and three grandchildren survive also. The sisters and brothers are: Mrs. John Stewart, Paulshoro, N. J.; Mrs. John Jeffries, Philadelphia; Mrs. Frank Muth, Newportville; the former Miss Vera Holden, Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. Walter Savage, Mrs. John Steinbrum; and the Messrs. John P. Fletcher and Thomas Holden, of Bristol.

The deceased was a member of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Mrs. Rodgers was born in Bristol and had resided here for her entire lifetime. She had been ill for some time.

The funeral will be held on Saturday
at nine a. m. from her late residence,
with Mass of Requiem in St. Mark's Church at 10 o'clock. Relatives and friends, also Catholic Daughters of America, are invited to the funeral.
Burial in St. Mark's Cemetery will be in charge of the H. S. Rue Estate, funeral directors. Friends may call Friday evening.

Deplores The Influence Of The Pacific Groups

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 23.—Addressing a meeting of the A. R. Atkinson, Jr., Post, No. 210, American Legion, of Doylestown, yesterday, Major Abel M.
MacKeynolds, of this place, deplored
the influence of the pacifist groups, especially those persons who sought to prevent Congress from increasing the strength of the Navy.

In spite of the fact that pacifists have attempted to prevent Congress from increasing the size of the Navy, the bill has passed the House, Major MacKeynolds explained, but it must pass the Senate, and there it may find some difficulty, he added.

"The American Legion has taken cognizance of the work of those antimilitaristic organizations and it does not subscribe to their principles," he declared. "I am convinced that had it not been for the pacifist movement
against national defense, there would have been no Hitler demonstrations in Europe during the past few weeks. It seems strange that Hitler and Mussolini can bluff the democratic nations
of the world."

Speaking along the same lines, Major MacKeynolds declared that had the Versailles Treaty been carried out,
there would be no threats of war today. The democratic nations of the world are helpless because of this pacifist movement, he contended.

The Post completed plans for the observance of Military Day in Doyle-town during the week of the town's centennial celebration.

LANGHORNE, Mar. 23.—The roast beef supper, which was sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Langhorne Fire Company in the fire house, Saturday evening, was a great success, 224 people being fed. The proceeds are pledged to the fire company
to help defray expense of the new fire truck.

Devises a New Dish

By "The Stroller"

All men love to eat; but some men more than others. This is particularly true of a certain second ward resident.

Sunday, when he returned to his home for the big meal of the day, he found a delicious portion of macaroni which had been prepared by his dutiful wife. Eying
the tempting dish with eagerness
he thought that he would improve upon it. He went to the pantry and getting what he thought was grated cheese sprinkled it liberally upon the macaroni.

Taking a large fork full of the delicacy he soon found that instead of cheese he had mixed shredded cocoanut with the macaroni.

TRUST FUND WILL PROVIDE FOR THE EDUCATION OF LAD

Mrs. Caroline B. Moon Leaves
Fund for Grandson's Benefit

THE GILBERT ESTATE

Four Sons Are To Inherit The Estate of Late Samuel
Gahman

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 23.—Creating a trust fund to provide an education for a grandson, Caroline B. Moon, of
"$10,000 and upwards."

The testatrix, who died February 16, directed that $500 be placed in a trust fund to be used for the education of a grandson, William G. Moon.
A granddaughter, Caroline Kathryn Armington, was bequeathed a diamond ring and the sum of $500 by her grandmother.

The residue of the estate will be inherited by two sons, Roy E. Moon and Harry L. Moon, who was named executor.

The $10,000 personal estate of Eugene Gilbert, Doylestown, will be in-

GLORIOUS SPRING

Spring is not so much seen as felt; there is a subtle change in the atmosphere that would herald the arrival of the new season even though the thermometer were still down at zero.

Spring is also a state of mind as is evidenced by the fact that this is the season of love. But if one were to try to enumerate all the attributes of Spring the job would be bungled were he caught by poet. Perhaps the best way to describe it in prose is to say that Spring is Spring.

Well, anyway, Spring is here again, and that means that the girls of all ages will be appearing in new finery, all of which will be pert, cute and quite intriguing, regardless of the customary barrage of disparaging remarks from the males.

ADVERTISING DID IT

When automobile manufacturers alarmed by the large stocks of used cars in the hands of their dealers and by the slow sales of new cars, decided to stage a "used car week" to move the used cars from the showrooms, many persons were skeptical of the results that could be attained.

But reports are that the log jam of used cars was broken, and that they are continuing to move.

It is significant, of course, that newspaper advertising was resorted to almost exclusively to bring about this result. Newspaper advertising came through, as it always does, and the fact that used cars are continuing to sell was to be expected.

Large advertisers learned long ago that when a mass purchasing movement is set in motion by newspaper advertising, it invariably continues indefinitely. No other medium of advertising can claim such long-sustained pulling power.

SPRING FEVER

What is Spring Fever? What is that languid and restless feeling that seizes hold of so many folks, as the birds sing their greeting songs, and the trees and shrubs burst into foliage and bloom?

To hear the stern old timers talk, you might think it was just laziness, a desire to lead vagrant and roving lives, the sentiment that makes you late to tie yourself up to a bench or desk.

Cold weather draws your nerves a little tighter, and when the mild days remove that stimulus, the body slumps. It is a bit like a violin which makes beautiful music when tuned to pitch, but when the strings are less tight, it gives out only a discordant wail.

Man's nature is more or less roving. It comes from our ancestors, all of whom wandered far away from their former homes. The modern person should not be too severely blamed if spring fever and the call of the blood tempt him away from toil.

To duck the headaches of falling profits and mounting taxes, a New Yorker deserts the marts of trade for a job on a Western ranch. He tried being rich but couldn't afford it.

You'd think woman would be discouraged. She has spent countless generations making man over, and look at him!

Dora gives us the woman's angle on the new set-up in Nazi Germany. She thinks Goering needs a foundation garment.

Aged Morrisville Man Tells of Town Changes

There were three hotels in Morrisville in the old days, one at Bridge street and Delmoro avenue, known as Robert Morris Hotel, since torn down and replaced by the present Robert Morris Building; the "middle" hotel, still standing on Bridge street, near Washington, and Gill's Hotel, which stood at Bridge street and Pennsylvania avenue and now occupied by the Morrisville Bank. The last was conducted by Charles Gill; the "middle" hotel, which was called the "Bleeding Lamp Hotel," by "Boney" Hibbs; and the Robert Morris Hotel by "Neighbor" Carlyle.

Of the stores, in the old days, Mr. Harrop remembers that Robert Mull kept a general store at the northwest corner of Bridge street and Pennsylvania avenue, and that Isaac Parsons kept another store on East Bridge street, just west of the present post office. At that time there was also a one-room schoolhouse which stood where Tattersall's coal yard is now located.

There was an old wooden bridge connecting Morrisville and Trenton, with the usual toll for pedestrians and for teams.

The Great Game of Politics

The prophets, he ran again for the Senate in 1932 and was "vindicated" by another whopping majority, though in that year the Roosevelt tide was running and the Democrats were confident of carrying the State. In 1934, when Pennsylvania really did go Democratic in a big way, and again in 1936, when no Republican could have been elected, Puddler Jim sat safely in his Senate seat, remote from all political peril. While Republicans all over the Union lost whatever they had to risk in that year he remained calm and secure. It is this year he has to put his fate again to the test and as the time approaches it is really amazing how much better things seem for him. It is as though they had waited until he needed the change.

ACTUALLY, at the moment, The Puddler, who, up to eight months ago, was a very long shot, indeed, appears almost an even bet. There are some who believe that before the election the odds will be in his favor, which is a very amazing political turnover. It is not only that the Roosevelt tide, which drowned so many conspicuous members of his party in 1932, 1934 and 1936, has begun to ebb pretty fast, but even more important is the terrific split in the Guffey-Earle machine, which until recently had been considered the most formidable in the country. Now it is torn in a bitter feud. After Mr. Guffey, the supposed boss of the machine, had been thrown out the window by his own State committee he fell into line for Mr. John L. Lewis' candidacy for Governor. Thomas Kennedy, Secretary of the United Coal Miners' Union. Instead of following the Senator in this direction, Governor Earle, who had announced himself a candidate for the Senate, came out against the Lewis-Guffey selection and for Mr. Jones, endorsed by Mr. David Lawrence and the committee.

THAT means an ugly primary battle in which the State patronage, largely controlled by Governor Earle, and the party machinery, apparently controlled by Mr. Lawrence, will be on one side, while on the other will be Mr. Lewis and his C.I.O. voters, plus all the Federal officeholders whose allegiance is to Senator Guffey. If Mr. Jones and Governor Earle should win, it not only puts Senator Guffey completely out of the picture as a leader but it somewhat mortally wounds Mr. Lewis' most ambitious effort to be the boss of the State and minimizes his influence in the 1940 convention. Should the Lewis-Guffey ticket be defeated in the primaries nothing would be more natural than for the C. I. O. influence to be thrown to The Puddler in the general election. Because The Puddler is not only a professional "friend" in his own right and a member for more than thirty years of the steel workers' union. His votes in the Senate are uniformly pro-labor and he has always had a labor following in the State.

IF, however, the Lewis-Kennedy combination should win in May the leaders of the other faction would hardly be enthusiastic about a ticket the success of which would relegate them to the rear both as public officials and political managers. In brief, whichever faction wins The Puddler will profit. So, too, of course, will ex-Governor Gifford Pinchot, who seems certain of the Republican gubernatorial nomination. In the matter of political luck, come think he, too, has had his share, but those who know his history best say his luck came because he fought for it. A very different type from The Puddler, a gay and cheerful warrior, a good loser and a crusading reformer, who was a fighting Progressive long before Mr. Roosevelt was heard of, Governor Pinchot's energy and determination seem undiminished by the years, and his ability to make the most of this kind of situation has been proved. Between him and The Puddler there has never been any degree of political animity. The Governor, in the past, has said some distinctly uncomplimentary things about The Puddler and, personally, they are as far apart as the Poles. All of which makes it strange to see them slated as running mates on the same ticket this fall. But, then, the whole Pennsylvania situation is so strange that no one can tell exactly how it got this way or how it will come out.

"Love I Dare Not" by ALLENE CORLISS

CHAPTER I

IT was six o'clock, and for the better part of an hour now, Alec Graham had been waiting for Gina to show up. He had just about decided she wasn't going to and that there was no point in his being bored any longer by this intolerably dull party at the Ritz, when she came through the door saw him, and hurried toward him.

In the time that it took her to cross the room, he saw that she was wearing a last season's suit and one of those ridiculous new hats, and that she looked tired but, in spite of the hat, quite lovely. He thought, wailing to her, "She is thirty-one and she looks older and she knows nothing about clothes, but she is the most carelessly beautiful woman I have ever known."

Then she came quite up to him and slipped her hand through his arm and said, "Sorry, darling. I simply couldn't make it sooner. The duchess was on a regular rampage."

"The duchess" was their special name for any wealthy dowager whom Gina happened to be painting at the moment.

"Why stand for it?" Alec sounded unwarrantably angry, and Gina knew instinctively that he was annoyed because the party, a publisher's tea, had proved as dull as he had expected, and because she was wearing a hat which was unbecoming to her. "Why didn't you just push her head through the canvas and walk out on her. You don't need the money."

Gina laughed. She had a light, silvery laugh that came naturally, without effort. "Don't be an idiot, Alec. I can't afford to get a reputation for smashing people's half-finished portraits over their heads. And I do need the money. I always need money. I am one of those awful people who always need their next commission no matter how fat the last one was."

Then she asked, "How's the party? Pretty bad?"

"Atrocious," said Alec. "I don't know why I bother to come to them."

He honestly didn't know. Didn't know why he continued to come to these literary teas, to stand around in crowded, noisy rooms, drinking cocktails he didn't want and talking trivialities with people he didn't like. Or did he like them? He had once, certainly. Once these had been the people he had yearned to know. Whose friendship and approbation he had coveted more than anything else in the world. They had been, and still were, the successful people. The clever ones. The important ones. That small, inner circle who created or produced or criticized or financed the books and art and theatre of a country. Once, to have been able to mingle with them, to be accepted by them, had been almost too much to hope for, almost too much to strive for. What had he, an awkward farm boy, educated superficially at a state university, to offer these great ones? He had come humbly, deprecating his talents, but he had stayed to outshine them all.

Five financially successful plays and three artistic failures had done that for him in less than twelve years. And so today, with his thirty-sixth birthday still two months distant, he was a success. He was one of them. And for some time now he had wondered why he had worked so hard, why he had cared so much, why to be able to come to a dull party like this and make bright remarks to people who were only there that they might make bright remarks to him had seemed so feverishly desirable.

Not, of course, that he thought all this in the fraction of a minute that he was saying to Gina that the party was atrocious. What he actually thought was probably: "I am bored. I have been bored all the afternoon. I am bored a great deal of the time, lately."

"I'm meeting Barry Bedard in an hour and having dinner with him."

And he thought even this with no great vehemence but rather with a casual acceptance. So he said now to Gina, "I would have left hours ago only you said that you would drop in if you possibly could and I stayed on the chance that you would. Let's beat it over to Twenty-one and have a quiet drink and then go on somewhere to dinner."

Gina's face became instantly regretful. "Oh, darling, I'm so sorry, but I can't possibly. I only stopped by for a minute because I'd half promised you I would. I'm meeting Barry Bedard in an hour right here and having dinner with him. We have to talk over some changes his mother wants made in his father's picture. I think this time she's going to have the mustache removed entirely." Humor touched her eyes and mouth for a moment, and then she said more seriously, "If I'd known, Alec, if you'd said anything about dinner, but you didn't."

"I know, I suppose I just took it for granted that you'd be free."

Beneath his quick disappointment at not being able to spend the evening with her, Alec was remembering vaguely that it had been years since he had bothered to make a definite dinner engagement with Gina. Usually when he wanted her to dine with him, he simply sought her out and if she wasn't free she was disappointed but never acutely enough to be any more definite about it the next time. Yet, once they had been in love with each other . . . once they had even planned to get married and spend the rest of their lives together.

Gina was smiling at him, that quick, light smile that had once stirred his pulses so exquisitely. "Well, I usually am free. It just happens."

"I know," grinned Alec ruefully. "It just happens that you're having dinner with Barry Bedard. Well, let's go somewhere then and have a cocktail. Not here, someone is sure to swoop down on us, the place is alive with people we know."

letters in basketball, football, and track. He was a varsity player on these teams for three seasons, with the exception of football, in which sport he did not play in his senior year.

"Jimmy" Ustlon, coach of the national champions, and who has been the mentor of basketball at Temple since that college was in its infancy, is expected to be the main speaker. Ray Burkley, secretary of the Temple University Alumni Association, will be here as well as Stan Gursinski, member of Temple's football and boxing teams for three seasons, and picked on many All-American teams as a guard, and at the present time coach of the Cherry and White boxing team. George Bellis, who was connected with the American Legion basketball league, and who is known to all legionnaires in this district, will be present. Bellis is one of the organizers of the well-known Stanfield Boys' Club, which has built up a basketball rivalry with several Bristol teams.

Every member of the Temple University basketball team which was crowned the national champions by winning the New York open tournament, has been invited. This club won 29 of its 22 games, and in the collegiate tournament beat the Oklahoma Aggies and "Whizzer" White's Colorado team. This combination at one time during the season ran up a string of 13 straight triumphs and performed the notable feat of stopping Luisetti, the Stanford University high-scoring star. The members of the team were: Don Shields, Mike Bloom, Don Henderson, Howie Black, Eddie Boyle, Jimmy Ustlon, Jr., Alby Frieberg, Anthony Alfano, Bob Nichols, Jim Fildorf, Jim Busha and Eddie McDermott.

Bloom, Shields and Boyle were picked on the All-Collegiate basketball team of Philadelphia. Bloom has signed with the independent champions, the Sphas, while Shields who was voted the best player in the National Tournament and also led the Eastern Intercollegiate League in scoring, is considering offers of the New York Celtics and the Brooklyn Vissies. Of the varsity five, Boyle and Henderson are sophomores and Black a junior. Alfano is a graduate of Southern High, making the tenth consecutive season that a Southern player has been a member of Temple's varsity team.

Movies will be shown with football being featured. Juenger has promised to have the films of the Temple-St. Mary's, Temple-Villanova and Temple-

Holy Cross games of 1936, and also pictures of the scenery that was filmed by the players on their trip to play football on the western coast.

Admittance to the affair is by invitation only. Invitations are being issued by members of the Knights of Columbus organization.

ON SCREENS IN BRISTOL

BRISTOL

The massacre of 183 brave Texan frontiersmen during the assault on the Alamo Mission by General Santa Anna's Mexican troops, in 1836, the historic event that instigated Texas' successful struggle for independence, is documented in Columbia's "Heroes of the Alamo," which opened Tuesday at the Bristol Theatre. The film is especially timely at this date, following as it does the recent celebration of 100 years of Texas' independence.

Among the gallant defenders of the Alamo, sacred shrine of freedom for all Texans, were Davy Crockett, the famous frontiersman, Col. James Bowie, of "Bowie Knife" fame, William B. Travis, commander of the Alamo's forces, Almerian Dickinson, a young landowner, and his pretty wife, Angie, who joined the men in the Alamo by stealing through the Mexican line.

After ten days of futile fighting, food and ammunition gone, only a handful of the original band physically able to hold a rifle or man the single cannon in the enclosure, the Texans were easily overwhelmed by the Mexican hord and slaughtered to the man. Only Angie, and her baby Angelina, were spared by General Santa Anna. He sent her as an envoy to Sam Houston to warn him that further resistance by Texas would bring about further massacre.

Anne Dickinson visited Houston as a bride, but instead of a warning she pleaded with the founder of Texas to fight the tyrant—and to "Remember the Alamo." It was that cry from the woman who had witnessed the holocaust at the Alamo that rallied the pioneers and drove Santa Anna beyond the Rio Grande.

The principal roles in this spectacular ular drama are essayed by Rex Lease, Ruth Fluday, Lane Chandler, Earl Hodgins, Julian Rivero and Bruce Warren. Harry Fraser directed.

GRAND

The plight of a star reporter who spends his wedding night on a goat hunt—under orders from his managing editor—provides the theme of the new Columbia romantic-comedy "No Time To Marry," which comes to the Grand Theatre today, Wednesday. Furthermore, everything happens on Christmas Eve.

Richard Arlen portrays the news-baw, and Mary Astor is seen as the woman reporter, or sub-sister, he is scheduled to marry. Also featured in the cast are Lionel Stander, a dumb photographer; Virginia Dale, as a missing heiress, and Marjorie Gateson, as the managing editor's wife and the cause of all the trouble.

For it is she who phones the managing editor (played by Thurston Hall) and insists he keep his promise to their son and obtain a pair of goats for the boy for Christmas. Hall, who had forgotten his promise, orders Arlen to get the goats that night or lose his job. Meanwhile, a teletype message concerning the disappearance of Miss Dale is received—and Miss Astor is practically waiting at the church.

When Miss Dale phones the newspaper office to deny indignantly the report published by the paper that she had eloped, Arlen makes the mistake of thinking she is Miss Astor, and excitedly makes a date with her. Miss Dale keeps the date and, under an alias, goes with Arlen and Stander on the goat hunt.

Such a situation—or series of situations—sounds most promising. The story was written by a man who should know the authentic flavor of newspaper offices, Paul Gallico, who was star sports writer on a New York tabloid for many years before he took successfully to writing magazine stories. Paul Jarrico wrote the screen play and Harry Lachman directed.

MANY BERTHS OPEN IN BIG LEAGUES FOR ROOKIES

By Pat Robinson
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Mar. 23.—(INS)—It's been years since so many major league jobs were open to aspiring rookies and for that reason we may reasonably expect to see many new faces in the line-ups this spring.

Every club has at least one opening for a youngster who can deliver the goods in big league style. Some of them have half a dozen vacancies to fill.

It's all up to the rookie himself and this time no aspiring bushier may say that he wasn't given every opportunity and encouragement.

Even the world champion Yankees have a spot to fill at second base and if young Joe Gordon doesn't come up to expectations he will have only himself to blame. The job is his if he can show he has the necessary equipment.

Of course, teams like the Phillies and Browns have virtually every position open, and one or two are by no means closed shops.

Connie Mack is practically begging for a couple of infielders, two or three pitchers and a catcher to deliver for him. Bucky Harris will surely use at least two of his rookie pitchers as starters and he would not be adverse to finding a budding Babe Ruth or another Eddie Collins.

The Giants would give a lot for a slugging outfielder who could pull a ball into the nearby bleachers and, despite the fact the Giants are popularly supposed to have the best pitching staff in the league, another pitcher or two would be highly acceptable.

Two infield jobs, a spot in the outfield and at least two pitching berths are going begging for the right ball with the Cardinals.

The Tigers could use a classy pitcher or two. As a matter of fact, every team in both leagues would give any amount in reason to find a pitching jewel in the rough.

The Bees are looking for youngsters who can propel a ball far and often and the Reds would like to find another Lou Gehrig and another Joe Dugan, to say nothing of a slugging outfielder.

The Red Sox want some pitchers and if anybody knows where there is another Eddie Collins in the making, why Eddie Collins himself, now directing the front office, would be glad to hear about the phenomenon.

Naturally, a team like the Dodgers, which is a haven for old men at the moment, is a soft touch for any rookie of promise. All the Dodgers need is a catcher, a few pitchers, two or three infielders and a brand new outfielder. A rookie who can't make a place to himself somewhere in that outfit could hardly hope to make the grade even with the Phils, Browns or Athletics.

Nor would a Dodger rookie have to be a world beater. He need only be good enough to be ready to fill in when some of the Dodgers' old men's knees begin to creak in July and August.

A pitcher or two and a hard-hitting outfielder would be acceptable to the Cubs and they wouldn't exactly frown on a young first baseman who was agile and could slug.

And speaking of first basemen, how would you like to have been a rookie trying to land a first base job on the Yanks any time in the last dozen years?

and human interest show. The judges of the Newtown Exhibit were Dr. William A. Roberts, Newtown; John J. Frome, Jr., Doylestown; G. Raymond Nickerson, Newtown. Thirteen ribbons of merit were awarded similar to those awarded at the school display. Following is a list of the winning contestants, all scholars being amateurs:

First prize, "Tranquil Lilies," by Hugh Robeson; second prize, "Three of a Kind," by John A. Poulette, Bristol; third prize, "Scouty," by C. Guthrie, Philadelphia.

Honorable mention ribbons were awarded to the following: "Self," Samuel O. Trautman; "The Glen," Hugh Robeson; "On Point," William A. Dougherty, Bristol; "Thirsty," Garrett Morrell, Langhorne; "The Road Out," George F. Elmer; "Capitol," Washington, D. C.; Paul Straus, Bristol; "My Corner," Alice H. Webb.

Doylestown; "First Catch," Violet Hillendorf, Bristol; "We're Ready," Norman Miller; "Spanish Moss," Helen Leary, Croydon.

ENGAGEMENT PARTY

At a party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sufas, Mill street, Sunday, the engagement of their daughter Anna, to Alexander Pappas, Philadelphia, was announced. Fifty-five relatives and friends were in attendance at this delightful affair. Guests were from Bordentown, N. J., Philadelphia, Norristown and Bristol. The wedding will occur in September.

PLAN PARTY TONIGHT

Mrs. Lily Waldron is confined to her home with gripe.

Sales Tax Constitutional

Pittsburgh, Mar. 23.—Philadelphia's recently enacted and hotly contested municipal sales tax was declared constitutional today by the State Supreme Court now in session here. The Court threw out the objections of the Philadelphia Restaurant Managers Association and the Philadelphia Club Managers Association.

Germany Tightens Grip

Prague, Mar. 23.—Czechoslovakian ties with Chancellor Hitler's expanding German Reich were tightened today as Comrade Henlein's militant Nazi German party assumed control of the largest party in this nation's Parliament.

The Nazis won this victory by persuading the Agrarian League to withdraw from Premier Milan Hodza's government. The Agrarian League immediately entered the ranks of the Nazis, giving Henlein's followers forty-nine seats in the Chamber of Deputies.

May Reach Agreement

London, Mar. 23.—Progress toward an Anglo-Italian agreement sped forward today as Prime Minister Chamberlain secretly sought to form a western maritime bloc of nations to stabilize Europe's trembling peace structure.

FALLSINGTON

Senate Is Goal of This Kentucky Feud

Spectacular political fireworks are promised in Kentucky, scene of many bitter party feuds, as Senator Alben W. Barkley and Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler fight for the Democratic senatorial nomination. The battle is between national

By JOHN MASTERSON

International Illustrated News Writer
LOUISVILLE—The campaign of Senator Alben W. Barkley and Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler for Kentucky's Democratic senatorial nomination promises to be a spectacular affair.

With victory at the August primaries the goal, Barkley and Chandler camps are priming their guns for what appears to be a pitched battle between national and state Democratic organizations.

Barkley, familiarly known as "Dear Alben" to President Roosevelt, is the "Roosevelt" man. Twice the nominator of Roosevelt at national party conventions, he is now majority leader of the senate.

Chandler, a former football player, is extremely popular among younger Democratic voters. Known as a "mild" New Dealer, he has enjoyed the support of a "rubber stamp" Democratic legislature.

Because Senator Barkley is considered a favorite of the Washington administration, candidacy of Chandler stands as a gubernatorial rival to the New Deal advocate.

The actual break came when the governor refused to attend a Barkley testimonial dinner in Louisville, which preceded Barkley's announcement for re-election by 24 hours.

It Should Warm Up

The Chandler candidacy was launched at a banquet in Newburyport, where his chief adviser, Dan Talbot, revealed that formation of Chandler clubs was already under way.

and state political organizations. Senator Barkley is a Roosevelt man, while the governor is known as a mild New Dealer and has enjoyed the support of a rubber stamp Democratic legislature. New Deal popularity still is high in Kentucky.

Running high in Kentucky, the odds may seem to favor the senator.

Those who have observed the governor's regime, however, predict he will show surprising strength.

From his important senate seat at Washington, Barkley will conduct a long-distance campaign during the early spring months.

Chandler, aided by his well-oiled state political machine, will fire away from Lexington.

Although the balloting may produce no such bloody results as the celebrated Hatfield-McCoy feuds, it will be pretty warm just the same. Whatever the outcome, it promises to be another victory for the late Judge James H. Mulligan, who was moved to verify: "The landscape is the grandest—and politics—the damndest, in Kentucky!"

"News wouldn't be NEWS without fast telephone service"

—says the REPORTER

In less than a day, the staff of this paper are reading, gathering the news from all the world, writes, edits and prints it and delivers it at your door. This is a job where time holds the whip and fast, dependable telephone service is indispensable.

IN every business, there are times when minutes saved are priceless . . . when delay may be too costly.

At such times, people need telephone service of split-second speed . . . service they can depend on.

To provide this fast, accurate, reliable service requires a vast amount of complex equipment, which must be constantly checked and kept in perfect condition. This is highly technical and specialized work. It requires long years of telephone experience.

Because we have the finest equipment and a competent, highly-trained personnel, Pennsylvania enjoys the best telephone service in the world—Bell service.

Whether you're running a newspaper, a home, an office, store or factory, you can use Bell Service—both local and Long Distance—with profit.

FALLS FIVE SWEPT
TITLE IN "B" TOURNEY

By Louis Tomlinson

SOUTHAMPTON, Mar. 23.—As Morrisville captured nearly everything possible in the football conference last fall, the Falcons from Fallsington High also swept almost every laurel in sight among the class B schools in the Bucks County tournament held here last week.

Aside from winning the title by downing Southampton in the final on Saturday night, Coach Jimmy Doherty's boys took the team scoring honors as well as individual laurels in that field, scored the most field and foul goals, placed three stars in the first five leading scorers in the tournament, and topped it all off with a trio of aces selected on the "All-Tournament" quiz. They also counted the most points in one game collectively.

The Orange and Black boys annexed the championship via victories over Springfield in the opening round, 24-21; Bensalem, 21-18, in the semi-finals; and Southampton in the final, 33-20. It doesn't necessarily follow that the winning combination should be the highest scoring team in the tournament, but that is generally the case and Fallsington followed the usual procedure by rolling up 98 tallies in their three tilts. That was just 21 points better than Southampton who finished up second with 77. The individual scoring honors were taken by George Chewning who collected a total of 25 points in the three games he played, while Vic Roberts with 21 and Bud Appenzeller with 20 markers, made up the trio that finished among the first five scorers. The Falcons hit the cords for 40 double deckers and 15 free shots to outscore other quintets in those arts and they were the only outfit to reach or pass the 30 point mark for a single game. Doherty's boys did it not once or twice but in all three games and beat the opposition by at least 10 points in each tilt. Then, too, they counted the most points in a single period when they scored 14 against Springfield in the last session.

The Falcons did not carry off every crown of achievement for the most outstanding work individually or collectively, however. For instance, little Bob White of Bensalem took the high scoring honor for a single contest when he rolled up 16 points against New Hope in the opening game of the tournament. The nearest to that was 12, scored by Chewning against Springfield, but several scored 11 points in one game. Little Yardley had the best foul shoot percentage as a team by throwing in seven out of 11 tries for a .636 mark, while Elmer Losse of Southampton carried off the same honor for an individual when he sunk five out of six from the 15-foot mark for a percentage of .833. At the other end of the picture was New Hope who fared none for the good in team scoring by collecting only eight points against Bensalem which gave them the inglorious crown of lowest scorers in the tournament. That was also the lowest number of points scored by a team in one game. They doubled up on themselves by counting only two out of 12 free shots to gain lowest honors in that field while Jack Nolan of Newtown, by scoring only two such shots out of 11 tries, had the lowest individual percentage for those who scored any at all. George Chewning sunk the most double deckers, 12 in all, while Vic Roberts and Elmer Losse scored five fouls to top the field in sinking free shots.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ellis entertained friends from Philadelphia, over weekend.

The Ladies Auxiliary of Cornwells Fire Co., No. 1, will hold a meeting in the fire house on Monday evening.

There will be a card party and dance in St. Charles Auditorium, Thursday evening.

Rookies Run Riot

Baseball's flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la, are those diamond morning glories, the rookie sensations of the training grind.

The sport pages are full of the exploits of Elmer Fumble and Joe Twerp, just up from the Three-I league and ready to set the big leagues ablaze with their sensational hitting and fielding. About this time the rumors are flying thick and fast that Joe Rookie is going to start the season shunting the veteran regular to the bench.

However, the opening day usually finds the freshman marvels on the sidelines looking on while the old familiar faces continue to hold down their jobs. Many rookies will get their walking papers before the season starts, as the teams progress on the northward trek. Others will stick around till the fateful summer day when the clubs must cut their rosters down to the prescribed player limit. A few—very few—will be kept all season, while a mere handful of these rookie riots will actually come through as regular performers.

The ambitious kids whose dreams are temporarily blasted by a return to the minors can keep on trying in the hope that next year will bring their big opportunity. You can't stop them from dreaming.

BRISTOL HIGH GYMNASTS
DEFEATED BY SOUTHERN

By Walt Hardy

Southern High gymnasts, who are the Philadelphia gymnastic champions this year, are probably the best in the U. S. for their class.

Bristol High started yesterday afternoon by losing first place on the horizontal bar. Southern High's star who is about the best all around champion ever to come to Bristol, took first on the horizontal bar with a teammate, Consalvi, tying Doyle of Bristol for second place.

The next event was the parallels which Southern High captured first, second and third. Teti and Small were tie for first with Consalvi taking third.

The next apparatus was the horse with Southern High taking first, second and third again. Bordo took first, Trybaba took second and Kaffer taking third.

The final event of the afternoon was the mats with Southern High again starring by taking first, second and third. Bordo and Trybaba of Southern tying for first and Teti of Southern taking charge of third place. The final score was Southern 38 and Bristol 7.

Statistics on gym meet:

Horizontal bar: First, Teti, Southern; second, Teti, Doyle, Bristol; Consalvi, Southern.

Parallels: First, tie (Teti and Small) both of Southern; third, Consalvi, Southern.

Horse: First, Bordo, Southern; second, Trybaba, Southern; third, Kaffer, Southern.

Rings: First, Karr, Bristol; second, Trybaba, Southern; third, Teti, Southern.

Mats: First, tie (Bordo and Trybaba) both of Southern; third, Teti, Southern.

Score by pieces of apparatus:

	Bristol	Southern
Horizontal	2	7
Parallels	0	9
Horse	0	9
Rings	5	4
Mats	0	9
Total	7	38

Judges: Hewlett, Temple, head judge; Hays, Temple; Scherf, Temple.

"CRUSHER" CASEY TO WRESTLE JACK LEAGUE

TRENTON, N. J., Mar. 23.—Steve "Crusher" Casey, leading title claimant and boasting the best record in recent mat history, will make his second appearance at the Trenton Arena tonight when he faces Jack League, undefeated Texan, on Johnny Ipp's weekly mat party. It will be a best two fall out of three, 90 minute time limit setto.

Casey has come a long way since he appeared here two years ago. He has never been defeated, whipping every capable grappler that would face him and climaxing his string with a win over Danno O'Mahony. Steve gained a sizeable leg on the title when he downed Louis Thesz. Casey has offered $10,000 to Jimmy London or Bronko Nagurski to meet him and clear up the title fuss but both these grapplers have indicated no desire to face the powerful Irishman Casey is the only outstanding wrestler that has never been defeated and he is regarded as being well nigh invincible.

Casey faces a tartar in League who realizes that international fame would be his if he beats Casey or even holds him to a draw. In his local bouts Jack holds wins over George Koverly, Joe Maynard and Henry Graber and a draw with the indomitable Rudy Desek. He has everything to gain and nothing to lose and he will sail after Steve with reckless abandon.

A corking supporting card will precede the main event. Len Macaluso, Colgate all-America football hero, will tangle with rough Charlie Strack, four minute victor over Geza Taka last week. Andy Rascher, popular collegian, faces Henry Piers, Flying Hollander, and Jimmy Parker, erstwhile Black Secret, meets Henry Graber of Germany.

The first bout will start at 8:30 p. m., and ladies will be admitted free to the ring-side section accompanied by a male escort.

Promising Crop of Rookies Now Making Bid for Place in Majors

Baseball Managers Are Testing Yearlings Hoping to Find Another Joe Di Maggio Among Candidates

International Illustrated News Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Is there another Joe DiMaggio in the house? Or, if not, is there a Lou Fette, a Bob Feller, a Jim Turner?

Major league managers are asking that as they send their squads through calisthenics, batting practice and inter-squad games in the various southern and coastal training camps.

And all are looking for one thing—a prize rookie.

It's the time of year for the makings, or perhaps breakings of the young ball player. If he makes the grade he may turn into another DiMaggio, rapidly taking Babe Ruth's place as a crowd pleaser, gate magnet and ball player with the Yanks. And then again, he may turn out to be a Fette or Turner, or Feller, the prize rookies of 1937.

Fette came to the Boston Bees from St. Paul of the American association. He had been in the pro game since 1923. He turned in 20 wins against 10 defeats for the Bees last season. That was something for a rookie.

Turner's case was even more surprising. He began his ball career in 1925 and at the age of 31 was attempting to break into the majors. He came through with 20 wins against 11 defeats.

New Rookies Promising

But major league managers don't find a DiMaggio, a Turner, a Fette every year, although one or two generally stand out among the crowd of first-year men when the season begins to age near October.

No less than 150 young and old rookies are attempting to make the grade right now. Very few will come through this year. Some have been up before and are trying again.

Included among the group are college men and color men. Probably the outstanding example of the new trend is Slingin' Sam Baugh, the football passer de luxe from the campus of Texas Christian university and from the pro fields of the Washington Redskins. Sam has been signed by the St. Louis Cardinals.

In the American league, the most promising rookies at the moment appear to be Joe Gordon from Newark, Yank infielder; Spurgeon Chandler, recalled from Newark, Yank pitcher; George Diekey, from Minneapolis, with Boston Red Sox; Oscar Grimes, from New Orleans, with the Indians; Harry Eisenstat, from Louisville, with the Tigers, and Stan Sperry, from Oklahoma City, with the Athletics.

Turning to the National loop, the class seems to be among Johnny Riddle, from Columbus and Indianapolis, with Boston; Steve Mesner, from Los Angeles, with Chicago; Willard Hershberger from Newark, with Cincinnati; Bill Lohrmann and Hy Vandenberg, both from Baltimore, and with the Giants; Johnny Rizzo, from Kansas City, and up with Pittsburgh Enos Slaughter, from Columbus who is with the Cardinals.

Always a Cheering Sight to Snow-Bound Motorists

Pennsylvania highways are kept open for travelers throughout the winter by rotary snow plows like the one shown above, supplemented by many other types of heavy-duty equipment. The Department of Highways' snow removal program guarantees that at least 18,000 miles of highways will be kept open throughout the winter.
